

In My Experience (IME) project.

To whom it may concern,

I am writing to you on behalf of the In My Experience (IME) project. We are currently launching an information campaign aimed at promoting a better understanding of autism, through our Facebook and Instagram page.

To achieve this goal, we would like to invite young people and adults with autism from your organisation to participate by sharing their knowledge and experiences around their autism with us. Anyone interested can do this by sending us a short piece of writing, art or multimedia (for example recording or animation) containing their opinions and experiences. These pieces will be shared on our social media platforms with the consent of the participants under pseudonyms.

Once these have been uploaded, members of the public will be invited to send us any questions they may have around autism. These questions will be monitored and vetted regularly. Participants will be asked to answer these questions if they feel comfortable to do so. These questions and the variety of answers given will then be posted online.

Anyone who would like to contribute to this initiative can contact us on this email (IMEmorethan@gmail.com) for further information.

It would be most appreciated if your organisation could pass this information on to anyone who may be interested in contributing in this way.

Thank you in advance,

Heather and Julia,

Co-ordinations,

IME Campaign.
